

BUILDING PERFORMANCE

Last updated: 14 July 2017

Building or renovating? Know your homeowner rights.

When you build or renovate your home, you need to know your rights as a homeowner. This guide explains the rights you have under the Building Act 2004. It covers things like:

- $3,000, you must get a building consent from the council before you start work. This includes things like ()
- If you are a homeowner, you have the right to:

 - get a copy of the building consent, and
 - get a copy of the building consent conditions.

- If you are a homeowner, you have the right to:

 - get a copy of the building consent, and
 - get a copy of the building consent conditions.

- If you are a homeowner, you have the right to:

 - get a copy of the building consent, and
 - get a copy of the building consent conditions.

- If you are a homeowner, you have the right to:

 - get a copy of the building consent, and
 - get a copy of the building consent conditions.

- If you are a homeowner, you have the right to:

 - get a copy of the building consent, and
 - get a copy of the building consent conditions.

- If you are a homeowner, you have the right to:

 - get a copy of the building consent, and
 - get a copy of the building consent conditions.

[PDF 449 KB]
<https://www.building.govt.nz/assets/Uploads/getting-started/building-homeowner-rights-hindi.pdf>

Building or renovating? Know your homeowner rights.

